- If during the specified period it becomes known that the interrupted event will not be continued but will be started anew, the outcomes of the event that became unambiguously known at the time of interruption are subject to settlement, and the remaining outcomes are settled with odds «1».
- At the same time, predictions made between the erroneous settlement and the recalculation are considered valid.

- If a technical error that occurred cannot affect the results of the event and the settlement of predictions, the predictions are settled at the original odds.
- Predictions made after the outcome of the event has been determined are settled with odds «1».
- If an event offered in the «LIVE» section is interrupted and according to official information will continue later, predictions on such an event offered in the «LIVE» section (predictions of the «LIVE» type) are considered valid.
- 6.23. In the list of events, the team on whose field the match is played is listed first.
- If the match is played on the field of the team whose name is listed second, predictions on this match are settled with odds «1», except in the following cases:
- 6.24. After placing an interactive bet, the gambling participant has the right to place predictions both for the entire amount of the interactive bet and for a part thereof.
- For this type of prediction, the gambling participant must correctly predict one or more interrelated outcomes of a single event.
- To determine the probable winning amount for a prediction, the prediction amount should be multiplied by the offered odds.
- If we place 1000 on the victory of team 1 (W1) with the offered odds 2.5, and team 1 wins, the winning amount will be 1000 x 2.5 = 2500.
- If for any reason the prediction is subject to return, the prediction amount is multiplied by odds «1».
- For this type of prediction, the gambling participant must correctly predict the outcomes of several events.
- All events included in the accumulator must not be interrelated.
- If interrelated events were included in the accumulator, then only the event with the highest odds is taken into account for the settlement of the prediction.
- To determine the probable winning amount for an accumulator, the odds of all events included in the accumulator should be multiplied, and then the prediction amount should be multiplied by the resulting odds.
- If we place 800 on an accumulator consisting of the following events: Georgia – Belarus W1 with odds 2, Norway – Serbia X with odds 3.5, Bulgaria – Hungary W2 with odds 2.5, and all event outcomes are predicted correctly, then the probable winning amount will be 800 x (2 x 3.5 x 2.5) = 14000.
- If the outcome of one event is predicted incorrectly, the accumulator is considered lost.
- If one of the events included in the accumulator was settled with odds «1», then such an event does not affect the results of other events included in the accumulator.
- A system is a combination of a certain number of accumulators.
- This type of prediction is characterized by an equal share of the prediction amount for each component (each accumulator) and an equal number of events included in them (in each accumulator).
- The gambling participant must specify the total number of all events included in the system, as well as choose the size of the system (the number of events included in each component (accumulator)).

Tower Rush

- The prediction amount for a component (one accumulator) is determined by dividing the prediction amount by the number of components included in the system (the number of accumulators).
- To determine the probable winning amount for a system, the sum of all probable winnings for the accumulators included in the system should be obtained.
- Suppose we have assembled a system 2/3 (the total number of events included in the system is 3, the size of the system (the number of events included in each component (accumulator)) is 2), and the amount of the prediction made is 1200. The system includes the following events: Scotland – Israel X with odds 3.5, Iceland – Romania W2 with odds 2, Valencia – Atalanta W1 with odds 2.5. The following combinations are formed:
- Thus, the total probable winning amount for the system will be equal to the sum of the probable winnings of all accumulators, i.e. 2800 + 2000 + 3500 = 8300.
- If the outcome of the 1-th event was predicted incorrectly, then the probable winning amount for the system will be equal to the winning amount for the accumulator in which the remaining 2 outcomes were predicted correctly.
- For example, suppose the outcome of the event was predicted incorrectly: Scotland – Israel X, then all components (accumulators) in which this event was included are considered lost (accumulator 1 and 3), and only accumulator 2 wins.
- Thus, the total probable winning amount for the system is equal to the probable winning for accumulator 2 – 2000.
- If the outcomes of 2 or more events are predicted incorrectly for system 2/3, the prediction is considered lost.
- If one of the events included in the system was settled with odds «1», then such an event does not affect the results of other events included in the system.
- This type of prediction represents a prediction on the outcome of events that have not yet started.
- Predictions of this type are accepted exclusively before the actual start of the event.
- This type of prediction represents a prediction on the outcome of an event that has already started during its conduct.
- Predictions of this type are accepted exclusively during the period from the actual start of the event until its end.
- 8.1.6. One of the participants (teams) will win (there will be no draw) – designated as «12».
- The handicap is written as fractional numbers (for example 0,5, 1,5, 2,5, …) or whole numbers (for example 1, 2, 3, …) and has a «+» or «-» sign.
- A handicap with a «+» sign shows the difference in points (goals, sets, seconds, etc.) by which the participant (team) may lose (i.e. lose by a smaller difference) for the prediction to be correct.
- A handicap with a «-» sign shows the difference in points (goals) that the participant (team) must overcome (i.e. win by a larger difference) for the prediction to be correct.
- If the final difference in points (goals, sets, seconds, etc.) coincides with the handicap value expressed in whole numbers, then the prediction is settled with odds «1».
- 8.2.1. «Handicap 0» or «Result without draw» is a prediction that one of the teams will win.

Tower Rush

- If the event ends in a draw, the prediction is settled with odds «1».
- 8.2.2. Asian handicap and Asian total with handicap and total are a type of prediction taking into account the handicap, where the value of the handicap and total is a multiple of 0.25 and is not divisible by 0.5 without a remainder (odd numbers that are multiples of 0.25, 0.75, 1.25, ... 3.25, 3.75, etc.).
- A prediction with an Asian handicap/total is divided into 2 parts: the argument of one of them is greater than the offered handicap/total argument by 0.25, and the other is less by 0.25.
- The prediction amount for an Asian handicap/total is divided into two equal parts between the first and second parts of the prediction, and the prediction odds remain the same for the first and second parts of the prediction.
- The probable winning amount for a prediction made on an Asian handicap/total will be the sum of the probable winnings of the first and second parts of the prediction.
- In this case, the probable winning is calculated as the product of the prediction amount and the odds.
- The gambling participant placed a prediction for the amount of 1000 on the outcome «Handicap 1 (-0.25)» with odds 1.85 (the first part of the prediction – 500 on the outcome «Handicap 1 (-0.5)» with odds 1.85, and the second part of the prediction – 500 outcome «Handicap 1 (0)» with odds 1.85).
- 2. Half of the prediction is correct, and the other half is settled with odds «1».
- The probable winning is calculated as the product of the prediction amount and the odds (odds +1)/2.
- The gambling participant placed a prediction for the amount of 1000 on the outcome «Total over 2.75» with odds 1.7 (the first part of the prediction – 500 on the outcome «Total over 2.5» with odds 1.7, and the second part of the prediction – 500 outcome «Total over 3» with odds 1.7).
- One half of the prediction turned out to be correct, and the second is settled with odds «1».
- 3. Half of the prediction is incorrect, and the other half is settled with odds «1».
- The probable winning is calculated as the product of the prediction amount and the number 1/2.
- The gambling participant placed a prediction for the amount of 1000 on the outcome «Handicap 1 (-1.25)» with odds 2.6 (the first part of the prediction – 500 on the outcome «Handicap 1 (-1.5)» with odds 2.6, and the second part of the prediction – 500 outcome «Handicap 1 (-1)» with odds 2.6).
- One half of the prediction turned out to be incorrect, and the other is settled with odds «1».
- The gambling participant placed a prediction for the amount of 1000 on the outcome «Total over 3.75» with odds 2.9 (the first part of the prediction – 500 on the outcome «Total over 3.5» with odds 2.9, and the second part of the prediction – 500 outcome «Total over 4» with odds 2.9).
- If a prediction with an Asian handicap (total) is included in an accumulator or system, the prediction odds are calculated in the same way as in the case of a single prediction.
- 8.2.3. European handicap is a handicap written as a score, where one of the participants (teams) is given a certain advantage in the score in order to win or not lose, expressed in whole numbers (2, 1, -1, -2, etc.).
- A prediction with a European handicap involves determining one of three outcomes: «W1», «X», «W2».
- Predictions taking into account the European handicap are settled based on the imaginary match score (the score obtained by adding the European handicap score to the final match score).

Tower Rush

- To settle a prediction taking into account the European handicap, it is not the real match score (with which the match actually ended) that is taken into account, but the score that will result if the European handicap score is added to the real game score.
- The gambling participant placed a prediction for the amount of 1000 on the outcome «Handicap (1:0) – W1» with odds 1.9.
- The prediction turned out to be correct, since when the handicap score is added to the game score, the imaginary game score will become (1:0), and the first participant will win.
- The gambling participant placed a prediction for the amount of 1000 on the outcome «Handicap (1:0) – Draw» with odds 1.9.

- The prediction turned out to be correct, since when the handicap score is added to the game score, the imaginary game score will become (2:3), and the second participant will win.
- If the final difference in points (goals, sets, seconds, etc.) coincides with the value of the European handicap, then predictions on the outcomes «W1» and «W2» are settled as lost.
- 8.3. A prediction on the total number of points (goals, games, etc.) scored by a participant (team) is designated – «Total».
- The total is written as fractional numbers (for example, 0,5, 1,5, 2,5, …) or whole numbers (for example, 1, 2, 3, …).
- When settling a prediction in which it is proposed to determine whether the total number of points (goals, games, etc.) scored by a participant (team) will be even or odd, the game score 0:0 is considered even.
- This prediction proposes to determine when a particular event will occur (the time of the 1-th goal, the time of the 1-th corner, etc.).
- The exact time for settling the prediction is determined without taking seconds into account (seconds are rounded up to the minute).
- Victory of the first team, the number of warnings (yellow cards) will be more than 3.5 and the number of corner kicks – less than 10.
- The first team will start the game from the center of the field, the second team will score the first goal and there will be a draw.
- If all outcomes of the prediction are predicted correctly, then the amount of game coupons used for the prediction is multiplied by the offered odds.
- If one of the outcomes of the prediction was settled with odds «1», and the remaining outcomes of the prediction are predicted correctly, then the prediction is settled with odds «1».
- If one of the outcomes of the prediction was predicted incorrectly, then the prediction is considered lost.

- To calculate the prediction for the remainder of the match, it is not the real score of the match (with which the match actually ended) that is taken into account, but the score that would result if the result that was recorded in the match before the prediction was made is subtracted from the real score of the match.
- A participant in the gambling game at the 76th minute of the match made a prediction on the outcome "Remainder of the match – W2".

- In this case, the yellow or red card received is also taken into account when calculating bets on cautions and sendings-off (it is considered that the card shown during the half-time break was shown in the second half, and the minute of the card being issued is the 46th).
- When calculating predictions made on the outcomes of sendings-off and cautions, sendings-off and cautions given to substitute players or to players who participated in the game but were substituted, to the coach or coaching staff, are not taken into account, and cautions and sendings-off made after the final whistle announcing the end of the match are also not taken into account.

- ◦ if after touching the post/crossbar a goal was recorded (after touching the post or crossbar the ball did not touch any player or the referee, but immediately ended up in the goal).
- If the ball touches the post and then the crossbar, or vice versa – first touches the crossbar and then the post, or touches the crossbar and the post simultaneously, it is considered that the ball touched the post/crossbar once, if after the first touch the ball did not in any way touch any player or the referee.

- The actual time of the match interruption is recorded according to official information.

- 9.4.1.1. In the match (set, game) the first tennis player (pair) will win – «W1».
- 9.4.1.2. In the match (set, game) the second tennis player (pair) will win – «W2».
- 9.4.1.3. In the match (set) the first tennis player (pair) will win taking into account the handicap – «Handicap 1».
- 9.4.1.4. In the match (set) the second tennis player (pair) will win taking into account the handicap – «Handicap 2».
- 9.4.1.5. Prediction on the total number of games in the match (set) – «Total over (under) the total value».
- 9.4.1.6. Prediction that the total number of games in the match (set) will be even (odd).
- «W1W1» – victory of the first tennis player (pair) both in the first set and in the whole match.
- «W2W2» – victory of the second tennis player (pair) in the first set, and victory of the second tennis player (pair) in the match.
- 9.4.2. In the event that the declared format of a tennis match was changed before the match, then predictions on the outcomes «W1» and «W2» and sets are subject to calculation according to the final result, and all other predictions are subject to calculation with the coefficient «1».
- 9.4.3. If in a tennis match that has started one of the tennis players (one of the pairs) for any reason is disqualified, refuses to play or is unable to continue the game, the match ends prematurely, and predictions are calculated with the coefficient «1», with the exception of predictions on outcomes that become unambiguously known at the moment the match is interrupted.
- 9.4.6. If before the start of the match one of the sides refuses to participate in the game, then predictions on all outcomes of this match are calculated with the coefficient «1».
- 9.4.9. When calculating predictions, penalty points (a point) awarded by the referee to one of the opponents (pairs) are taken into account.
- At the score (6:4), (3:2), the judge awarded 1 penalty point to the second tennis player and the score became (6:4), (3:3).
- In this case, it is considered that the 6th game of the 2th set was won by the second tennis player.
- In the case where a penalty point or points is awarded to any of the participants (pairs), it is considered that the tennis player (pair) who earned the penalty point receives the minimum number of game points that is currently required to win the current game.

Tower Rush

- The current match score is 1:0 (6:1), (3:1), and the current game score is 40:15, and the umpire awards a penalty game (points) to the second tennis player, then the score of the second set becomes 3:2, the number of game points will be 8 (eight), and the game score will be 40:P2, since the first tennis player already had 3 (three) points (15, 30, 40), and the second tennis player needs to score at least 4 (four) points to win the current game (30, 40, more, the winning point). In the case of awarding penalty points, when calculating predictions made on game points, the above-described principle applies.
- The match is won by the team that wins three sets, and the set is won by the team that is first to score 25 points (in the 5-th final set – 15 points) and has a lead over the opponent of at least 2 points.
- When the score in a set is 24:24, and in the final set 14:14, the set continues until, in the current score of the set or the final set, one of the teams achieves a lead of 2 points over the opponent.
- A maximum score at which a set is considered completed is not provided for; the set continues until one of the teams in the set achieves a lead of 2 points.
- Matches may also be held in another format, where from 2 to 3 sets are played.
- 9.5.2. In volleyball during the play-off, when games end with the same score in favor of different teams (for example, in the first game the score was 3:2 in favor of the 1-th team, and in the return game – 2:3 in favor of the 2-th team), one additional set is played – the "Golden Set" (in the "Golden Set" the team that is first to score 15 points wins), the winner of which advances to the next round.
- Results recorded in the "Golden Set" are not taken into account when calculating predictions on the outcomes of the return match.
- The match is won by the team that wins 2 sets, and the set is won by the team that is first to score 21 points (in the 3-th final set – 15 points), having a lead over the opponent of at least 2 points.
- If in a set the score is 20:20 (in the 3-th final set – 14:14), then the set (the 3-th final set) continues until one of the teams achieves a lead over the opponent of 2 points.
- 9.5.4. Predictions offered on the outcomes of volleyball and beach volleyball matches:
- 9.5.4.3. The first team will win the match (set) taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 1".
- 9.5.4.4. The second team will win the match (set) taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 2".
- 9.5.4.5. The first team will win the match by number of sets taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 1".
- 9.5.4.6. The second team will win the match by number of sets taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 2".
- 9.5.4.7. Prediction on the total number of points scored by both teams in the match (set) – "Total more (less) than the total value".
- 9.5.4.8. Prediction on the total number of points scored by a team individually in the match (set) – "Total more (less) than the total value".

- 9.5.5. In volleyball and beach volleyball, handicap and total are calculated by points, except for the handicap by sets and the total by sets, which are calculated by number.
- 9.5.6. A volleyball or beach volleyball match that was interrupted and was not continued or completed within 24 hours is considered not to have taken place.
- 9.5.7. A technical victory (defeat) established for any reason is not grounds for calculating predictions.

- 9.6.1.7. Prediction that the second participant, based on the race results, will take a higher place than the first (designated in the line as "2").
- 9.6.3. If both racers retired, then the winner in the pair is considered to be the racer who completed more laps.
- When calculating bets on the final result of baseball matches, results recorded in the additional post-match inning (innings) are also taken into account.
- 9.7.2. According to the Mercy Rule, a baseball match may end early if one of the teams gains a significant advantage over the opponent.
- In such cases, the match is considered to have taken place with the result recorded at the moment of stoppage, and all predictions are calculated taking into account the result recorded at the moment of the match stoppage.
- 9.7.4. In baseball matches, it is also possible to change the format of the game directly during the game (for example, instead of 9 innings, 7 innings will be played).
- 9.7.5.3. The first team will win (not lose) the match taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 1".
- 9.7.5.4. The second team will win (not lose) the match taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 2".
- 9.7.5.5. Prediction on the total number of points earned by the teams in the match – "Total more (less) than the total value".

- 9.7.7. Predictions on the number of player statistics in a baseball match are considered valid if the players were declared and started their performance in the match (except for predictions made on the number of pitcher statistics, which are considered valid if the pitcher was declared and it was he who started the meeting, and did not participate in the match as a substitute).

- 9.7.8. A baseball match that was interrupted and within 24 hours was not continued from the interrupted inning or was not completed is considered to have taken place if at least 5 innings were played in full.
- If the interrupted match is replayed from the very beginning, then predictions on the outcomes of the interrupted match are calculated with the coefficient "1", except for predictions whose outcomes have already become unambiguously known.
- Predictions made on the outcomes "P1" and "P2" of baseball matches interrupted at an equal score and considered to have taken place are calculated with the coefficient "1".
- 9.7.9. A technical victory (defeat) established for any reason is not grounds for calculating predictions.
- 9.8.1. Snooker matches mainly consist of an odd number of frames (playing rounds).
- The winner of the match is considered to be the player who wins the greatest number of frames.
- 9.8.2. In snooker matches, a "Stalemate situation" may occur when shots at the red balls do not contribute to the continuation of the frame.
- In the event of a "Stalemate situation", at the suggestion of the referee (both players must simultaneously agree with the referee's suggestion to resume the frame), the players may play the current frame anew (resume the frame from the score 0:0).
- In such a case, predictions on the outcomes of the current frame are calculated based on the results recorded during the replayed frame.
- However, if after the continuation of the frame a player misses on three consecutive shots, victory in the frame is awarded to the opponent.
- In such a case, predictions on all outcomes of this frame, including the outcomes "P1" and "P2", are calculated with the coefficient "1".
- If the player who disagreed with the referee continues the game and pots balls, then predictions made on this frame remain in force and are calculated based on the final result.
- 9.8.3.3. The first player will win the match (frame) taking into account the handicap – "Handicap 1".

- 9.8.4. All predictions on frame outcomes are calculated after the end of the frame.
- 9.8.5. All points awarded by the referee are taken into account when calculating predictions made on match outcomes.
- In some cases, the referee may award victory to one of the players before the end of the given frame (for example, when the referee proposes a solution to the current situation, and the player does not agree with it and, by committing opposite actions, loses).
- In such a case, the frame is considered to have taken place, and all outcomes are calculated according to the recorded result.
- 9.8.6. If for any reason one of the frames is not played, then all predictions on the outcomes of this frame are calculated with the coefficient "1", and predictions on the other outcomes are calculated based on the final result.
- For example, if one of the players is late for the time appointed for the start of the frame, the referee may award victory to the other player and count the frame as having taken place, but in this case predictions on the outcomes of this frame are calculated with the coefficient "1".
- 9.8.7. If the necessary information is absent on the site from the main sources of information, the video recording of the match is taken as the basis for calculating predictions on the outcome "The first ball will be potted by the first (second) player".

Types of bets at Mel Bet
Single	- a single bet that includes one outcome on one sporting event. If the prediction turns out to be correct, the player receives a profit. The winnings amount is calculated by multiplying the stake amount by the odds in the bet slip.
Accumulator	- a combined sports bet may include several independent sporting matches. An accumulator is formed from events across different disciplines. If at least one prediction in the accumulator does not win, the entire bet loses. When the player has correctly predicted all the selected matches in the accumulator bet slip, the winnings will be calculated as the product of the stake and the final odds in the bet slip.
System	- bets of the system type assume that the bet slip will include several separate accumulators, and singles may also be included. This type of transaction will not be considered losing if any accumulator is incorrectly predicted by the player.
